October 13, 2024. Under the terms of The agreement: The world has changed drastically since then, and no w Flash games are a dying breed - not least because most modern browsers no long er support them. It&#39;s not been available on mobile for eight years since And roid dropped it in its 4.1 release. But not all hope is lost. Preservation efforts for Flash games are well underway, and web gaming platform Poki is significantly stepping up its own eff orts by partnering with Nitrome, now a respected mobile studio, and adding 100 o f the developer&#39;s old Flash titles to the platform. To find out more about why it&#39;s preserving these games, we spoke wi th Poki co-founder Michiel van Amerongen and other members of the team - as well as Nitrome&#39;s Mat Annal - about the technical challenges of saving these gam es and why it&#39;s good business for everyone involved. PocketGamer.biz: We last spoke with you around four years ago following the launch of Color Switch on your platform. How has Poki grown and changed ove r those four years? Michiel van Amerongen: 2012 - 2024 was a challenging time for web games
. The app stores had exploded, Flash was on its way out, but its successor HTML5 was still a niche game development technology.
