The film was an international co-production film bet ween The United States and Mexico. George Lutz wanted the sequel to the 1979 fil m to be based on the book The Amityville Horror Part II by John G. Jones, but th e producer Dino De Laurentiis secured a deal with American International Picture s for a sequel based on Murder in Amityville by Hans Holzer. Lutz sued De Lauren tiis and ultimately lost, but succeeded in having posters placed in theaters sta ting "This film has no affiliation with George and Kathy Lutz." [5] The film was later acquired by Filmways, which in turn was acquired by Orion Pictur es shortly before release. [2]

Production was originally set to begin in September 1981 with a screenp lay by David Ambrose and under the direction of John Hough. However, production was pushed back and they were both replaced. Principal photography began March 8 , 1982 at the same residence in Toms River, New Jersey that the previous film us ed. [2] After two weeks on location in New Jersey, studio shooting was completed in Mexico City for eight or nine weeks at Estudios Churubusco Azteca S.A. [2] The production&#39;s decision to shoot interiors in Mexico was largely due to econo mic reasons.

Contemporary opinion [ edit ]

Scream Factory released the film on Blu-ray in 2013, as part of The Ami tyville Trilogy set, which also included The Amityville Horror (1979) and Amityv ille 3-D (1983). [19]
